Good Way's Thunderbolt 4 Dock Pro is compatible with Windows, Mac and Linux operating systems. With a single Thunderbolt or USB Type-C cable connection, the dock creates a future-ready workstation setup and ultimate connectivity. Features include three Thunderbolt 4 ports offering high-speed data transfer rates at 40Gbps and a single 8K@30Hz or dual 4K@60Hz video output. One upstream port is available with PD at 96W for charging. The product also comes with a certified HDMI 2.1 port, four USB-A 3.1 Gen 2 ports (one with BC 1.2 5V/1.5A and Apple Charge 2.1A), one RJ45 2.5 Gigabit Ethernet port, one SD 4.0 card reader and one Hi-RES audio combo jack.

“Good Way is proud to work closely with Intel to deliver innovative and quality docking stations that enable users to fully utilize Thunderbolt 4’s leading capabilities. The Thunderbolt 4 Dock Pro is a versatile product based on Intel’s Thunderbolt 4 Goshen Ridge controller and is backwards compatible with Thunderbolt 3, USB 4 / 3.2 / 3.1 / 3.0 / 2.0, supporting multiple connectivity demands,” said Raymond Chan, Senior Manager at Good Way.

The Thunderbolt 4 Dock Pro is a professional level docking station designed for demanding high-productivity workflows. The features are outfitted to provide creative professionals and gamers with extensive visual productivity and powerful connectivity.
